

Nutrigenomics and personalised nutrition.

Special prizes

(Approved by the academic committee on 19-01-2016)

- Criteria and weighting

- Thesis with European or international mention (20%).
- Quality of publications deriving from thesis where the candidate is the first author (70%).
- Grants obtained by the candidate during the predoctoral period (5%).
- Merits relating to innovative nature of the thesis subject, techniques employed by the candidate, difficulties overcome during the research, etc. These merits are evaluated during a 15 minute interview. Candidates will be informed in advance so that they can prepare a presentation in which they highlight the merits that they believe make them worth of a special prize (5%).

- Required documentation

- Curriculum vitae.
- Accreditation of European or International mention for thesis.
- Copy of the first page of each of the publications deriving from the thesis in which the candidate is the first author.
 - If the article has been accepted for publication, the candidate must present the letter of acceptance from the journal and the manuscript that was submitted.
 - A copy of the abstract must be provided for publications at conferences.
- List of publications deriving from thesis where the candidate is the first author. For each publication, please specify:
 - Journal: order of authorship, title, journal, year of publication, quartile and ambit, impact index of the year of publication, article/review, number of citations and ISSN.
 - Book or book chapter: authors in order of signature, title, publisher, year, ISSN.
 - Patent: inventors in order of authorship, number of application, priority country, priority date, ownership, countries in which the patent has been established.

- Conferences: authors in order of signature, title, type of contribution (poster, oral presentation, etc.) conference, publication, place, year, organising institution.
- List and accreditation of grants obtained by the candidate during the predoctoral period; for each grant please indicate the purpose for which it was awarded, the funding organisation, the duration and the institution.